Morning,

I hope your week-end wasn't as bad as you thought it was going to be. I received a copy of correspondence that Christa Ludlow forwarded to Mrs Challita's solicitor which provided the documentation from your unit and apologised for the delay and saying the delay was caused by an oversight in the Crown Solicitors Office. So now Christa will be part of the conspiracy.

Christa wanted me to thank you so very much for your patience and tolerance as a witness in this matter. I want to also thank you for your professionalism in the face of great adversity. Let me know when you want me to look at the letter you are drafting to Mrs Challita about Amanda's application.

PROCESSED

Christa is still in her current job and if she has time to look at it I think anything she would advise is worth considering. I will try to look at the draft later today.

I was interrupted. I meant to say I have put Christa down for consultation too but if you don't think she needs to be involved we can remove her name.
